of Brown Men
Well Aimed.

fighting at Vafangow Exhibition of Pluck and Heroism.

Under Mikado's Flag, as Those Under Ours, Fought Desperately to Death.

LAO YANG, June 17.—A correspondent of the Associated Press who was present at the battle of Vafangow describes the fighting as a severe, dogged fighting at the base of Vafangow was like another day. The roar of the machine guns and the boom of the cannon rang in the ears.

Throughout the three days of combat soldiers and men with each other in pluck and heroism. They have glorious passages to Russian military history.

Hall of Missiles.
The enemy's advance originally included the Fifth, Eighth and Eleventh divisions, twelve squadrons of cavalry and a battery of heavy artillery. About two hundred guns were belching a continuous stream of shot and shell. Large reinforcements enabled them to turn the Russian flank. A diversion on the right precipitated the battle in the evening of June 15.

General Goincross, who was commanded the left flank and Loutchovsky commanded the right, including four battalions composed of a small wood, whence they made a dash and destruction on the enemy's flank.

View of Battle.
While these big guns were thundering, the Russian right flank and climbed a hill where I could view the whole field of battle. Behind me a battery had taken a position from which it kept up continuous fire upon the advancing army of the enemy. Through glasses I saw the sandy valley of the Tassia, the Chinese village of Fafan.

The heights of Fafan, the railroad and the surrounding cops were held by Japanese infantry. Then the Russian right flank and climbed a hill where I could view the whole field
saw the sandy valley of the Tassia,
the Chinese village of Fafan.

Awe-Inspiring Scene.
The scene was awe-inspiring. Over the Russian center of left flank and chocolate clouds from bursting cannon. It was evident that the tide of battle was coming toward the Russian right. The Russian reserves hurrying forward, the Cosacks galloping columns of infantry. Suddenly they appeared in an adjacent defile. The right where the Russians had camped was emptied as if by magic. Rattling shots were fired behind the screen of which concealed the fighting troops.
The view in that direction, the sound of firing being the only evidence of the struggle proceeding there.

Russians Are Reinforced.
A moment of harrowing suspense relieved by a thundering shout of triumph.
It was from a couple of thousand of Russian troops just brought up by the Japanese. They quickly jumped from the forest and literally ran down the hill.

As a long line of commissariat troops escorted by Cosacks took to the road, a battery of horse artillery moved, near the railroad, and fired furiously as it covered the retreat. The Japanese were falling from the station buildings, from which a Russian train had moved.

Russians Fall Back.
The Russian right flank and just succeeded in jumping on the footboard of the Russian train. Some of the Russian bat-alions on the left flank were still firing, but the Russian force then began slowly to retreat toward Vafangow (thirty miles west of Vafangow), and at about 1 p. m. the Russian mission. The battle of Vafangow had accomplished its purpose and deflected considerable Japanese forces from Port Arthur.

The fighting was glorious. For two days the Russian regiments took the Russian positions and took the Russian positions on the left, so pressing the Russian force that a couple of Japanese batteries fell into the Cosacks' hands.

Russians Sang Battle Hymn.
The Russian soldiers went into battle, their spirits not affected by the loss of the battle.

baking powder

anything else instead.

SHOCKLEY GETS WRIT OF PROBABLE CAUSE

District Judge Morse issued a certificate of probable cause yesterday in the case of the State vs. James M. Shockley, sentenced to be shot on June 21, and notice of appeal to the Supreme court was filed by the defendant's attorneys with Clerk James of the District court. Service of the court's order granting the certificate of probable cause was made upon Sheriff Emery, and under the Utah statutes he will be obliged to stay the execution of the convicted murderer until the Appellate court has passed upon the merits of the case.

It is believed that the transcript of the proceedings cannot be prepared before the time set for the execution, and Shockley will therefore not be shot on the 21st inst.
The next regular term of the Supreme court will not be held until October, and unless a special session should be held the case will not be heard until late in the fall.

The crime for which Shockley is now under death sentence was committed in this city on January 6 last. For the purpose of robbery the defendant entered a street-car at the end of the line, Second South and Thirteenth East streets, and ordered the conductor, Thomas R. Bright-ton, to hand over his receipts for the day.
The motorman, Amasa L. Gleason, drew a rusty gun from his pocket, and Shockley shot both men and fled. He confessed to the crime after his arrest, but insisted that the killing of Brightton was accidental and that he shot Gleason in self-defense. He was convicted of murder in the first degree for the killing of Gleason and was not tried for the other crime.

Attorneys Wilson and Smith, representing the defendant, say that they will fight the case to the last ditch, and are hopeful of saving the client's life.
